Space Planning for the “Joint Center for Environmental Monitoring and Technology” on NCU Campus

Hung-Po Hsu

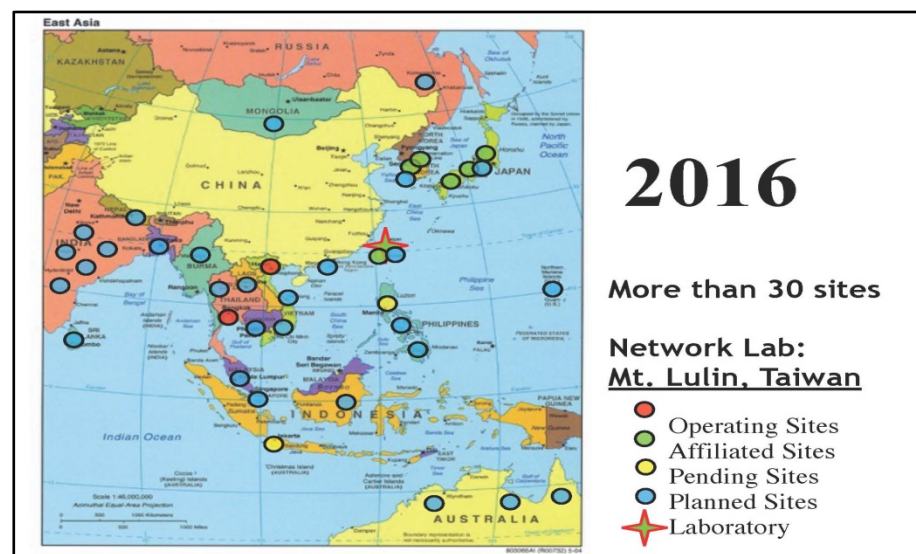

Department of Environmental Monitoring and Information Management
Taiwan EPA

Background

- ◆ EPAT and USEPA are working together to establish a collaborative Asia-Pacific Mercury Monitoring Network (APMMN).
- ◆ NCU Hg Lab serves as the regional center for ultra-trace level Hg analysis and training to help analyze rain water samples and some atmospheric Hg samples, and to train researchers from other Asian countries for capacity building of ultra-trace level Hg sampling and analysis.

Background

- ◆ Wet Hg deposition sampling and analysis are currently underway with 3 sites in Vietnam, Thailand and Indonesia.
- ◆ The APMMN is expected to expand to 30 sites in 2016, exceeding the current capacity (space, instrument and manpower) of the NCU Hg lab.
- ◆ EPAT will select 3 sites in SE Asia for Atmospheric Hg sampling in 2015-2016.
